Milwaukee Branch NAACP celebrates 100th anniversary

The Milwaukee Branch of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People (NAACP) celebrated its 100th anniversary on Friday, October 18, 2024, at the Baird Center during its annual Freedom Fund Dinner. The keynote speaker was New York Democrat Congressman Hakeem Jeffries.

The Milwaukee Branch NAACP has functioned as one of the city's leading civil rights organizations since it was founded in 1924 by prominent African Americans in the city, including Wilbur Halyard and his wife, Ardie. That same year, they also founded Columbia Savings and Loan, which still serves the community today.

The group's goal was to fight segregation and discrimination in housing, education, employment, voting, and transportation. It remains the largest and oldest civil rights organization in the nation.

"It's been a real fight, and it's been challenging, and as we see, some of the same issues are still around and alive today," said local President Clarence Nicholas.

"The Halyards created this, obviously, because people of color, particularly African Americans, could not get loans," said Ray Allen, former president and CEO of Columbia Savings and Loan.

The Halyards not only changed the narrative for African Americans in housing but also expanded the geographical landscape of where black residents could live in Milwaukee.

ThriveOn King officially opens its doors to Bronzeville neighbors with Trick-or-Treat event

On Tuesday, October 15, 2024, ThriveOn King located at 2153 N. Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr., Dr., the community hub developed by the Medical College of Wisconsin, the Greater Milwaukee Foundation and Royal Capital, hosted an open house. The public was invited to tour the first floor, including the new Kinship Café and the available gathering spaces with demonstrations of their technical capabilities. Milwaukee County Executive David Crowley and Milwaukee Mayor Cavalier Johnson were on-site, donating blood with Versiti Blood Center of Wisconsin; and a community open house for Bronzeville neighborhood residents with food, family-friendly games and activities, and trick-or-treating with the first-floor tenants.

Charles Antetokounmpo Family Foundation, GE HealthCare announce initiative to improve health in Milwaukee

A commitment to improve health in Milwaukee is getting a little boost from a hometown superstar.

The Charles Antetokounmpo Family Foundation and GE HealthCare are partnering to "power Milwaukee forward."

The goal is to improve health outcomes in the city of Milwaukee, recognizing that a strong community means investing in the health of its residents.

GE HealthCare and its foundation are teaming up with Milwaukee Bucks power forward Giannis Antetokounmpo and his family foundation. They're investing $1-million in this initiative. Here's how it'll work.

Ten Milwaukee nonprofits will receive grants. The $1-million will be split between them, so that's $100,000 for each organization.

Milwaukee Mayor Cavalier Johnson and County Executive David Crowley said they're excited about the impact of this investment.

Giannis and his family, including wife Mariah, were on hand for the big announcement, and say they're excited to give back to a community that continues to show their family so much love.

"I grew up in this community," Giannis Antetokounmpo said. "I've had my kids in this community, I thrive in this community, and I call this community home. And I want to make a difference in this community moving forward."

Officials say each of them address social determinants of health in the community, which is why they were chosen.

This includes housing, education, food, safe physical environments, and maternal and infant health care.

Being Frank

By: Frank James
Special to the Milwaukee Times

What happened?

African Americans have always had struggles in the USA. The drugs and violence in the African American community has been around for decades. There is nothing new about poverty in the inner city where African Americans reside. Yet, in 2024 African Americans have sunk to a level where many African American youth are simply happy to be alive. How did this situation come about? What happened?

One major reason African American aspirations have dropped so low is that the love African Americans express for each other has diminished over time. The 2024 African American has taken the anger that they feel abut society and applied it to other African Americans. The simple act of speaking and acknowledging other African Americans has been lost. African Americans often look at each other as the enemy. This is why African American violence toward each other is an issue in the USA. Many African Americans talk about, "brotherly love," but apply this to other races, not African Americans. What happened to black Pride?

I was talking to an African American male in his early twenties. This young man felt that he was winning in life because he was alive. I agreed figuring he was going to expound about a goal he was working toward. This young man went on to tell me that he was glad that he was not in a grave because so many people he knew were dead. I looked at him and saw that he was being genuine. How did life in the African American community come to this? To a point where success for African Americans means simply living to be 25? African American people, life is a marathon, not a sprint. At 25, a person is just getting started on understanding who they are. The way this young man was talking had me thinking that 25 years old was an achievement worthy of a gold watch. Have the goals and aspirations of African American youth been diminished to the point where any job, or situation is a success just because you are alive and not in prison? What happened?

African Americans used to have grandiose dreams and strives to achieve them. In 2024 many African Americans' main goal is simply to live to see another New Year. Who is at fault for this? The easy answer is US society. That is not the correct answer. US society plays a big role in the situation African Americans are in; but it is not the main reason. The main reason is African American people.

Tell the truth and shame the devil, African American people. Who is it is that is creating the music that has African American youth glorifying negative images? Many African American youth come from stable households, yet they want to be "street." Whose hand is often on the trigger when an African American is blasted into the hereafter? Whose hand is pushing the drugs and that have poisoned generations of African Americans? I know what you are saying, there is a white hand behind these situations. In all honesty, that is true. But, the hand that is doing the actual work, is African American.

The 2024 Presidential race is winding down. As this event wraps up, each individual African American needs to look at their existence. No politician can clean up African American issues. No amount of legislation will correct African American woes. The work has to be done by each individual African American, inside their own head. African Americans need to get some sense of love and pride for each other instilled into their heads. If not, in the year 2040 there won't be any African Americans around to ask what happened.

Fan favorite conductor Ryan Tani returns to MSO

Ryan Tani, who took the post of assistant conductor of the Milwaukee Symphony Orchestra (MSO) in the fall of 2023, will be leading four weekends of concerts before the end of the year. He will be on the podium for movie soundtrack performances of the Disney/Pixar film Coco Nov. 2-3 and The Muppet Christmas Carol Nov. 29-Dec. 1, as well as conducting the symphony's popular Hometown Holiday Pops concerts Dec. 14-15 and 20-22.

"Last year was a chance to do everything. It challenged me in every way," Tani said. "Family concerts, Pops concerts, speaking to the audience — all of those were things I'd never done before, and nothing prepares you for any of them."

Looking ahead, Tani said that his next two assignments present different challenges. The orchestra for Coco will contain two guitarists and a lot of Latin percussion, to reflect its Mexican setting. And in the film's themes of ancestry and family, Tani may be thinking of the fond memories he has of his own Spanish-speaking grandmother.

The 30-year-old The Muppet Christmas Carol, however, is a holiday tradition for many families, and they will enter the Bradley Symphony Center with "high expectations for what it sounds like," Tani said. "People love it because of the music, and the score gets put in the forefront."

The Hometown Holiday Pops concert, expanded to two full weekends this year, is "a great way to bring people into our hall," Tani said. "Music is such a part of the holiday, and people find reasons to connect through music. As a singer, I love that."

To learn more about Ryan Tani and the Milwaukee Symphony Orchestra's full season visit mso.org.

Milwaukee Recreation welcomes all families to 'Twilight & Treat'

For the young people and families who attend, Milwaukee Recreation's Twilight & Treat is one of the most cherished events of the season. With hundreds of participants in attendance each year, many community members have turned to Twilight & Treat for a change of pace from the typical Halloween weekend festivities.

This fall, Milwaukee Recreation is hosting its annual Halloween celebration at Andrew Douglas Middle School Twilight Center (Oct. 25) and Bay View High School Twilight Center (Oct. 26). This free drop-in-event features an exciting lineup of family-friendly activities such as carnival games, trick-or-treating, Halloween themed arts and crafts, and a variety of enrichment activities suitable for all ages. Age appropriate carnival games featured at this year's event include ring toss, tic-tac-toe, hole in one, and much more!

To all participants, Twilight & Treat is more than just an event; it's an opportunity to learn more about the safe and accessible programming offered at Twilight Centers across the city. "Our mission has always been to provide a fun and safe place for young people to go in the evenings," Anthony Hagge, a supervisor for Milwaukee Recreation's Twilight Centers, said. "This event is our way to further engage the community of Bay View as a whole and allows us to show that we're here for them."

Milwaukee Recreation's Twilight Centers have always strives to create a space where youth can feel safe, empowered, and included across various program areas. Throughout the year, each Twilight Center hosts a variety of late night programs, activities, and workshops that match the needs of Milwaukee's diverse student body.

MPS Photos

"With our enrichment programs, we're working to allow these participants to try activities that they might never have access to such as photography, Virtual Reality (VR) simulators, and more," Hagge said. "We're also one of the latest drop-in centers for teens and youth in Milwaukee."

Milwaukee Recreation's Twilight Centers offer programming and extended hours at select school locations so young people throughout the city have a safe place to go during the evenings for free. While Twilight is known for their innovative enrichment programs, they also work directly with families, school faculty, and community members to determine what students in the broader area need out of their programming. From canvassing neighborhoods to tabled discussions at parent teacher conferences, Twilight works to ensure the community feels both heard and represented in every step of the process.

"We're working to provide that safe place to allow young people to come to enjoy themselves, stay off the street, and just be kids," Hagge said. "Without the community, participation from parents, and the young people that come to our site, there would be no Twilight."

Beyond the Halloween festivities, Milwaukee Recreation's Twilight Centers are offering several exciting events in the coming months. Skate Nights are set to return to Andrew Douglas MS Twilight Center on Nov. 8 and Bay View HS Twilight Center on Dec. 14. In the new year, participants can look forward to Twilight's annual Egg-stravaganza event on April 11, 2025 at Andrew Douglas and April 12, 2025 at Bay View. While programs like Twilight & Treat are open to all ages, Twilight Centers are only open to youth ages 10-14 and 12-18. See below for site information.

How to cope after the loss of a child

By: Samantha Gordon

Losing a child is one of the most devastating experiences any parent can endure. The overwhelming grief, the sense of loss, and the profound emotional pain are unlike anything else. While no words can fully capture the heartache, finding ways to cope is essential for healing and moving forward, even when it seems impossible.

Types of pregnancy and infant loss:

- Miscarriage: The most common type of pregnancy loss, this is the loss of a fetus before 20 weeks of pregnancy.
- Embryonic pregnancy: This is when a fertilized egg implants in the uterine wall but never develops.
- Chemical pregnancy: A very early miscarriage that usually occurs in the first few weeks after conception.
- Ectopic pregnancy: This is when an embryo implants in the fallopian tubes or outside the uterus.
- Preterm loss: The loss of pregnancy between 20 and 36 weeks of gestation.
- Stillbirth: The birth of a deceased baby after 20 weeks of pregnancy.
- Neonatal death: The birth of a live baby that dies within the first week and up to 28 days of life.

How to cope after the loss of a child:

- Take care of yourself: Eat regular meals(healthy meals), be sure to rest when needed, and exercise regularly(low-impact exercises, like walking and yoga).
- Take as much time as you need to grieve: There is no timetable to feeling grief. Grief may even come and go; this is why you should always give yourself some grace (silence negative self-talk, practice gratitude, practice self-compassion, and practice not being perfect).
- Express your feelings: Allow yourself to feel. Acknowledge when you're feeling sad, angry, confused, guilty, shocked, etc. You can express your feelings in many different ways. Cry when you need to let it all out, write and/or journal, paint, dance, or even sing.
- Get professional support from a grief councilor, therapist or spiritual leader: From a grief counselor, therapist or spiritual leader. Professional support will help you to better understand your thoughts and feelings, help to build and use coping skills/strategies, help to identify unhealthy behaviors, and help to establish routines for better day-to-day wellness and well-being.
- Join a support group: Sharing your grief with those who understand may bring on emotional connections, which will make you feel less alone and/or isolated. Support groups provide room for emotional release, new coping ideas, information sharing, a sense of pride, sense of hope, and may even improve your mood and decrease psychological distress(a state of emotional suffering that can include a range of symptoms and experiences that are often troubling or confusing).
- Get on a routine: Routines are good for your mental health, physical health, safety and productivity.

I strongly encourage you to participate in World Pregnancy and Infant Loss Remembrance Day, as it allows you to provide comfort and support to those who have experienced infant loss and to raise awareness about this very important issue.

How to raise awareness:

- Support grief counseling organizations and/or services: You can contribute (volunteer your time, buy tickets to events/online gatherings, donate financially) to organizations that provide grief counseling and support services to individuals and families affected by pregnancy and infant loss.
- Show face at events: Attend and participate in local events, memorial services, or eleven online gatherings/informative sessions that focus on pregnancy and infant loss awareness.
- Sit in moments of silence: Join in moments of reflection and silence to honor and remember the lives of babies who have passed away.
- Share your story of pregnancy/infant loss: If you have personally experienced pregnancy or infant loss, consider sharing your story to raise awareness. Doing so will bring comfort and support to those who previously have or may be going through a similar experience.

I want to leave you with this, there is no right way to grieve. How you cope after the loss of a child is your journey alone.
